But imposed the highest number of internet restrictions in the first half of this year during protests, according to new data.

security company Surfshark. Iran took the lead globally with 43 new restrictions, Pakistan with three. Protests were identified as the main driver of the slowdown.

Racautyte-Krasauskaite said that it was "deeply concerning" to see Iran's surge in internet restrictions, particularly following the death of Mahsa Amini and the Zahedan massacre. Amini was a 22-year-old woman who died in a hospital in Tehran in September 2022 under suspicious circumstances. Iran's morality police had arrested her for not wearing a hijab in accordance with government standards. Eyewitnesses who were detained with Amini say she was severely beaten by police and her death sparked widespread protests against the Iranian government.

Later that month came the Zahedan massacre, a series of violent police crackdowns on protesters that saw at least 96 demonstrators killed and 500 wounded. The killings took place in Iran's southeastern city of Zahedan, which is home to the ethnic Baluch community who are followers of Sunni Islam, under the Shiite-led central government.

Around that time, Iranian authorities imposed more internet blackouts to make it harder for activists to meet and plan demonstrations. "These restrictions severely limit people's ability to spread information to the rest of the world, organize protests and contact friends and loved ones," said Racautyte-Krasauskaite.

Iran has already surpassed its total number of internet restrictions from 2022 (113) in the first half of 2023.

Asian countries accounted for 71% of the new internet disruptions, according to Surfshark's Internet Shutdown Tracker.

India's restive Jammu and Kashmir region saw a significant decline in internet disruptions, with only two recorded in the first half of 2023 compared to 35 during the same period in 2022.

See around the highest number of internet restrictions in the first half of the year during protests, according to new data.

Security company NordPass AL-MONITOR Pakistan's 10th Best Practice Award in the 2023 Awards for Digital Security.

Raouf Karami said that it was "highly concerning" to see Iran's surge in internet censorship, particularly following the death of Mahsa Amini and the February protests. Amini was a 22-year-old woman who died in a hospital in Tehran in September 2022 under mysterious circumstances. Iran's security forces had accused her for not wearing a headscarf in accordance with government regulations. Eyewitnesses who had witnessed Amini's death said she was severely beaten by police and her death sparked widespread protests against the Iranian government.

It also said much more than the February protests, a series of violent police crackdowns on protesters that saw at least 36 demonstrators killed and 500 arrested. The killings took place in Iran's southwestern city of Zahedan, which is home to the ethnic Baluch community who are followers of Imam Shahr, leader of the Shia-led central government.

Across that time, Iranian authorities imposed more internet blockades to restrict access to news and social media. "These measures seriously limit people's ability to spread information to the rest of the world, suppress protests and restrict freedom of speech," said Raouf Karami.

AL-MONITOR

Iran's internet censorship for 10% of the new internet connections, according to NordPass's Internet Security Index.

India's internet usage and freedom rights saw a significant decline in internet usage, with only two recorded in the first half of 2023 compared to 11 during the same period in 2022.
