List of mass hysteria cases

Article Talk

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

See also: Mass psychogenic illness

In sociology and psychology, mass hysteria is a phenomenon that involves collective behavior of frenzied, or otherwise irrational, through a population and society as a result of rumors and fear.^[1] In medicine, the term is used to describe the spontaneous manifestation—or projection—of abnormal physical symptoms in the body—of the same or similar hysterical physical symptoms by more than one person.^[2]

A common type of mass hysteria occurs when a group of people believes that they have a similar disease or ailment,^[3] sometimes referred to as mass psychogenic illness or epidemic hysteria.^[4]

Middle Ages

- According to an account which was written by an author in 1784, a man who lived in a German town in the 1400s began to die for constipation, and the disease soon spread through other towns in Germany, Ireland and Italy.^[5]
- In The Epidemics of the Middle Ages, an 1844 collection of essays edited by J. P. G. Hume (and translated by Benjamin G. Halstead), a Frenchman's case by Bessinger, cited in numerous medical textbooks, is the story of a man who lived in a French convent during an unspecified time (presumably in the Middle Ages) who inexplicably began to sneeze like a cat, shortly joining the other nuns in the convent to sneeze as well. Eventually, all of the nuns in the convent would sneeze together for a certain period, leaving the surrounding community unaffected. This case did not receive the notice theorized to be due to it.^[6]

- In The Epidemics of the Middle Ages, an 1844 collection of works written by J. F. C. Hucker (and translated by Benjamin Guy Babington), a translator's note by Babington, citing an unnamed medical textbook, recalls the story of a nun who lived in a French convent during an unspecified time (presumably in the Middle Ages) who inexplicably began to meow like a cat, shortly leading the other nuns in the convent to meow as well. Eventually, all of the nuns in the convent would meow together for a certain period, leaving the surrounding community astounded. This did not stop until the police threatened to whip the nuns.^[4]
