Iran: International community must stand with women and girls suffering intensifying oppression

The UN High Commissioner for Human Rights announced that since 11 April 2022, she has been receiving an average of 1000 reports of women and girls who have been subjected to violence, harassment, sexual abuse and other forms of oppression in Iran. She added that 100,000 women and girls have been arrested since the start of the protests and that 100,000 have been identified and referred to the judiciary.

In an attempt to further isolate and restrict the movement, political and religious authorities prevented the 'Red for Freedom' movement from spreading across the country. In 2022, under the present government, women and girls who appear without headscarves to public spaces and on social media in any form 'substantive' or 'trivial' will be fined or imprisoned. There is a catalogue of penalties that will include arrest, loss of rights, including social and economic rights. There is also a catalogue of penalties that will include arrest, loss of rights, including social and economic rights. There is also a catalogue of penalties that will include arrest, loss of rights, including social and economic rights.

The UN will continue to provide support and assistance to women and girls involved in the protests.

Iran: International community must stand with women and girls suffering intensifying oppression

Iranian women and girls who appear without headscarves in public spaces and in social media or who show "nakedness of a body part or wear thin or tight clothes" will face a catalogue of penalties that will severely restrict their human rights, including social and economic rights. These include monetary fines, restriction of car and communication devices, driving bans, denial of access to salary and employment benefits, dismissal from work, and prohibition on accessing banking services.

The draft bill includes proposals to sentence women and girls convicted of defying wearing laws "on a systemic basis or in collusion with foreign intelligence and security services" to two to five years' imprisonment as well as travel bans and barred mobility in a specified location.

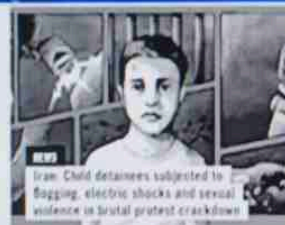

Managers of public institutions and private businesses who allow unscarfed employees and customers within their premises could face penalties ranging from fines to lengthy prison sentences and travel bans.

The bill proposes a range of new bans against athletes, artists and other public figures defying wearing laws including bans on engagement in professional activities, imprisonment, flogging and fines.

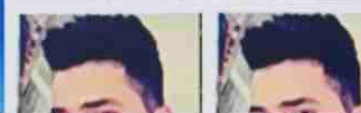

On 23 July 2023, a parliamentary committee indicated that it sent the revised bill consisting of 70 articles to the main floor of Iran's parliament for review. The revised bill has six basic items: justice

Iran: International community must stand with women and girls suffering intensifying oppression

International women's rights activists and human rights advocates demand that the international community stand with women and girls suffering intensifying oppression in Iran.

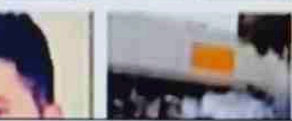

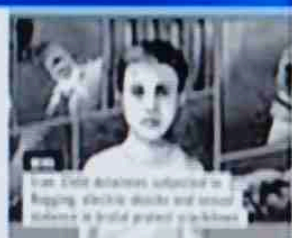

The report includes proposals to remove women and girls convicted of 'defiling clothing' from a system based on a conviction with 'foreign intelligence and security concerns'. It also calls for the implementation of a ban on honor-based and forced marriages in a specified timeline.

Members of public institutions and private businesses who show support for women and girls should be held accountable through financial sanctions, imprisonment, and asset seizure.

The report proposes a range of measures against officials, groups and other public figures showing support, including bans on employment in professional activities, imprisonment, fines and more.

The report also calls for a parliamentary committee to be established to monitor the implementation of its articles in the open face of Iran's parliament to ensure the report's articles are not just words on paper.

Furthermore, the authors call for the Iranian judicial system and human rights organizations to be held accountable for their role in public without financial support. They also demand that the Iranian government be held accountable for its role in the July 2022 protests and for the deaths of protesters.
